Volume 76, Issue 3
2020

iv • On Being and Becoming – Heather Greenhalgh-Spencer

1 • On the Allure of Bridges vs. Diving for Pearls: A Phenomenological Inquiry into Autism and Ontological Inclusion – Glenn M. Hudak

Response to Hudak
15 • Knocking Out Bricks: Crip Foundations for Building Aesthetic Inclusion - Adam J. Greteman

22 • Self-Forgiveness, Shame, and Moral Development – Mordechai Gordon

Response to Gordon
36 • For Shame: The Social Pre-Requisite Conditions of Self-Forgiveness – Kathleen Knight Abowitz

42 • Knowledge, Moment, and Acceptability: How to Decide Public Educational Aims and Curricula – John Tillson

© 2020 Philosophy of Education Society

Response to Tilson
56 • Pragmatic Perfectionism –
Alexander M. Sidorkin

61 • The Touch of the Present: Educational Encounters and Processes of Becoming - Sharon Todd

Response to Todd
75 • A Touch in the Present: Reactions and Rhizomes - Heather Greenhalgh-Spencer

80 • Toward a Phenomenology of the Mistake: A Reading of Plato's Meno - Itamar Manoff

Response to Manoff
93 • For Philosophy, Mistakes are Enough - Darryl M. De Marzio

98 • Why Does Socrates Shame Thrasymachus? - Mason Marshall

Response to Marshall
111 • Should Socrates Shame Thrasymachus? The Gap Between What a Teacher Intends and What a Student

Learns - Michael S. Katz

116 • Footnotes to Dewey: Everyone Learns - Kelvin S. Beckett

Response to Beckett
130 • Learning and Becoming with Dewey, Peters and Freire: A Response to Beckett - David E. Meens

134 • Reciprocity, Exchange, and Indebtedness in Noddings's Concept of Care. - Jessica Lussier

Response to Lussier
148 • Ontological Tensions in the Ethics of Pedagogical Relations of Care - Mel Kutner

154 • Education as the Hidden and Incomplete Resistance - Steven Zhao

Response to Zhao
168 • Education as Spectacular Sacrifice: A Response to Steven Zhao – Daniel P Gibboney, Jr.